Critical core components of tertiary supports include functional behavior assessment, functional academic assessment (Witt, Daly, & Noell, 2000), comprehensive team-based approaches, connecting academic and behavioral supports, interventions grounded in assessments that may include altering the environment and instruction, teaching needed skills, decreasing the efficiency of problem behaviors, use of safety or negative consequences as needed, increasing behavioral expertise, and use of ...

Integrating Academic and Behavior Supports-Tertiary

Secondary supports systems in academics and behavior share a surprising number of critical features. First, secondary supports are often overseen by a team charged with pre-referral consultation, screening, assessment, and progress monitoring, in addition to actual intervention (Lewis-Palmer, Bounds, & Sugal, 2004).

Integrating Academic and Behavior Supports: Secondary

The relationship between academic and behavior problems is a long recognized phenomenon (Alexander, Entwisle, & Horsey, 1997; Hinshaw, 1992). In their meta-analysis, Maguin and Loeber (1996) found that poor academic performance appears to be related to frequency, persistence, and seriousness of delinquent activity.
