Affirming Diversity: Our schools reflect the sociocultural and sociopolitical context in which we live. This context is unfair to many young people and their families and the situations in which they live and go to school, but teachers and other educators do not simply have to go along with this reality. I believe one of our primary roles as educators is to interrupt the cycle of inequality and oppression.

Chapter Summary. Chapter One: Understanding the Sociopolitical Context of Multicultural Education sets the stage for Affirming Diversity.
Key terms, concepts, goals and assumptions of multicultural education through a sociopolitical lens are investigated, situated and defined. Nieto and Bode use demographics representing the mosaic of U.S. schools and society to illustrate the change in population and the need for multicultural education for all children.
